[1] Zaha Hadid was born in Iraq in 1950. Her father was a businessman and her mother was an artist. By the age of 11, Zaha was fascinated by architecture. Her parents were of great assistance and encouraged her to design some of the interiors in their home. Hadid's family used to travel a lot when she was a child. She went to schools in England and Switzerland. Consequently, she received a multi-cultural, international education. She recalled the impact of travelling with her fother: "He made sure I want to every important building and father: "He made sure I went to every important building and museum in each city we visited. This has helped me to learn about architecture. I think that is what inspired my love for buildings."

[2] Hadid got a bachelor's degree in mathematics from the American University in Lebanon. In 1972, she moved to continue her studies at the Architectural Association in London. After graduation in 1977, she got her first job as an architect at the Office for Metropolitan Architecture, in the Netherlands. Later in 1980, she opened her own architectural company in London.

[3] Hadid began teaching architecture, first at the Architectural Association, then at big universities such as Harvard, Cambridge and others. In the 1990s, Hadid started taking part in architecture exhibitions. They gave her good opportunities to meet professionals. Yet, it wasn't easy. She had to face discrimination and jealousy in a field which was totally male dominated. She met Patrik Schumacher, who was studying architecture at the time. He later became her business partner. Schumacher said, "I was fascinated by the frankness and openness of her designs."

[4] In 1998, Hadid designed an art museum in Ohio, USA. The New York Times described the project as the "most important American building to be completed since the Cold War." It was not only Hadid's first American project, but also the first American museum designed by a woman. A year after the completion of the museum, Hadid was awarded the Pritzker Prize in 2004. She was the first woman to receive that prize. In 2010, she received the UK's most prestigious architectural award, the Stirling Prize. In 2016, a month before her death, she became the first and only woman to be awarded the Royal Gold Medal from the Royal Institute of British Architects.

[5] Hadid was an outstanding architect. She also invested in property, restaurants, cosmetics, and fashion. Her company employs more than 400 people and works on projects all over the world. Hadid died from a heart attack in 2016 in Florida.
