Then, on your answer sheet, tick the letter of the answer you have selected.

TEXT 1:

For any business, the cost of transportation is normally the largest single item in the overall cost of physical distribution. It doesn't necessarily follow, though, that a manufacturer should simply pick the cheapest available form of transportation. Many companies today use the total physical distribution concept approach that involves maximizing the efficiency of physical distribution activities while minimizing their cost. Often, this means that the company will make cost tradeoffs between the various physical distribution activities. For instance, air freight may be much more expensive than rail transport, but a national manufacturer might use air freight to ship everything from a single warehouse and thus avoid the greater expense of maintaining several warehouses.

When a firm chooses a type of transportation, it has to bear in mind its other marketing concerns—storage, financing, sales, inventory size, and the like. Transportation, in fact, can be especially important sales tool. If the firm can supply its customers' needs more quickly and reliably than its competitors do, it will have a vital advantage: so it may be more profitable in the long run to pay higher transportation costs, rather than risk the loss of future sales. In addition, speedy delivery is crucial in some industries. A mail-order distributor sending fruit from Oregon to Pennsylvania needs the promptness of air freight. On the other hand, a manufacturer shipping lingerie from New York to Massachusetts may be perfectly satisfied with slower (and cheaper) truck or rail transport.

61. The passage supports which of the following statements?

64. The phrase 'cost tradeoffs' in the passage (line 6) means that companies

- A. sometimes engage in bartering goods
- B. may choose an expensive form of transportation if cost can be cut in another area

65. It can be inferred from the passage that transportation is

- A. important to continued successful sales

TEXT 2:

Noise is a given in our everyday lives. From the moment the alarm clock buzzes or the garbage trucks rouse us, to the time we fall asleep despite the neighbour's stereo, we accommodate noisy intrusions.

Studies suggest that we pay a price for adapting to noise: higher blood pressure, heart rate, and adrenaline secretion- even after the noise stops; heightened aggression; impaired resistance to disease; a sense of helplessness. In terms of stress, unpredictability is an important factor. Studies suggest that when we can control noise, its effects are much less damaging.

Although there are no studies on the effects of quiet in repairing the stress of noise, those who have studied the psychological effects of noise believe that quiet provides an escape. Most people who work in a busy and fairly noisy environment love quiet and need it desperately.

We are so acclimated to noise that complete quiet is sometimes unsettling. You might have trouble sleeping on vacation in the mountains, for example, without the background sound of traffic. But making the effort to find quiet gives us a chance to hear ourselves think, to become attuned to the world around us, to find peacefulness and calm. It provides a serene antidote to the intrusively loud world we live in the rest of the day.

TEXT 3:

Only humans have a spoken, symbolic language; scientists have long thought that nonhuman primates had much less sophisticated communication systems. True, but chimpanzees use gestures and many voice sounds in the wild, while other apes use sounds to communicate territorial information. Chimpanzees seem to have a natural talent for learning symbolic language under controlled conditions. A famous chimpanzee named Washoe was trained to communicate with humans, using no less than 175 sign language gestures similar to those of the American Sign Language. After more than a year Washoe could associate particular signs with activities, such as eating and drinking. Another chimpanzee named Sarah was taught to read and write with plastic symbols and acquired a vocabulary of 130 different words, to the extent that she obeyed sequences of written instructions given with the symbols. But such experiments in communication with primates are a far cry from the versatility and grace of human speech.

76. According to the passage, all of the following are true of chimpanzee communication EXCEPT

- (A) it is less sophisticated than human language
- (B) it is observable in the wild
- (C) it uses gestures
- (D) it is as versatile as human communication

77. The passage states that the ability of chimpanzees to learn symbolic language in certain situations is due to

- (A) their territoriality
- (B) their use of gestures and voice sound in the wild
- (C) their natural talent
- (D) their use of the American Sign Language

78. According to the passage the chimpanzee Washoe

- (A) was able to associate some signs with activities after a year
- (B) used fewer than 175 signs to communicate
- (C) was fluent in the American Sign Language
- (D) could read and write

79. The passage states that Sarah's ability to read and write was judged by

- (A) the size of her vocabulary
- (B) the dexterity in using the plastic symbols
- (C) her obedience to instructions given in the symbol language
- (D) the number of symbol sequences that she could manipulate

80. According to the author, spoken, symbolic language is

- (A) not a sophisticated communication system
- (B) only available to humans
- (C) shared by both humans and chimpanzees
- (D) similar to the language used by chimpanzees
